ASB Council Discusses Cars, Buildings, Funds

By Juanita McCaleb
Collegiate Staff Writer

Monday's ASB meeting student council listened to a proposal presented by Dr. Rippey, CBC President, to purchase a new Greenbrier and a Chevrolet. The old Greenbrier needs repairs and has 15,000 miles on it. The new Chevrolet, which is under the contract, gave a cash of $1,300 on the old Greenbrier, leaving a total of $1,300 to be paid. The $1,632 will come out of the $3,000 set up by the council for automotive depreciation which $1,500 remains. The $1,500 was spent earlier on the other Greenbrier.

NEY TO purchase the car will come from an insurance rebate of $2,074.90. The cost is $2,588.91. This leaves $583.91 on the car and $132.24 on the Greenbrier to come from some other fund.

The District will hold the keys to the car and the Greenbrier but they will always be held for college use first, Dr. Rippey said. The keys to the car will be kept by his secretary.

The motion to have the proposal sent to a committee was rejected and the motion to purchase the automobiles was rejected with three dissenting

A STUDENT union building was discussed. Rippey said that the building would be built with a Federal Housing Loan, with the bonds to be paid off. The payment would actually be contracted against student fees. Dr. Rippey said, "It looks like it is going to take an actual bill to be passed by the legislature."

John Kinsey, ASB treasurer, stated in the meeting that he had been asked by Miss Cook, P.E. instructor, to ask the council for the removal of Gerry Wheat as head cheerleader.

Kinsey said that Miss Cook gave Miss Wheat's absence at the meetings as the reason. The matter was set aside as a special order of business for Wednesday.

In the Wednesday meeting it was voted unanimously to retain Miss Wheat as head cheerleader.

The Technical Vocational department asked that the proceeds from the Mid-Management Club sponsored dance to go to a Jim Rider scholarship fund. The reason was the lack of scholarships in the technical vocational field. Several objections were raised and a discussion followed. Discussion was tabled.

Students to See State Government In Action

Political Science Division CBC will participate in the annual Biennial Legislative Conference to be held in Olympia, January 28 through March 2. A partial grant from the Center for Education in Politics, will finance most of the trip.

Mr. Oberst, division chair, said, "Inasmuch as the trip will only cover a part of the expenses, the remainder of the trip will have to be matched by student participants."

According to Oberst, 12 to 15 students will be screened by a committee, composed of 2 members to be selected by themselves. Interested students may obtain applications from Mr. Oberst, who will then conduct the screening process.

SEMINAR will be the first time at which CBC students have participated. Oberst said. Aside from Yakima Junior College, which entered the program only last year, CBC is the only junior college in the state participating." He said most of the major four-year colleges such as the University of Washington and Gonzaga University also participate in the CEP program.

Plans for the seminar include a Sunday night banquet, with Representatives Doris Johnson and Dan Jolly, Senator Mike McCormack and Judge Hamilton of the Washington State Supreme Court attending. These legislators will explain to the visiting students what legislation is pending, and what committee meetings they may attend.

Also, Judge Hamilton will take the students on a tour through the Temple of Justice (State Supreme Court building) and explain how the Supreme Court operates.

"That leaves us lots of time for attending committee hearings and sessions of the House and Senate. Arrangements are pending to meet with lobbyists, who will explain their role in the legislative process," Oberst said.

Two Plays to Open Tonight

By DALE LONG
Collegiate Staff Writer

An evening of one-act plays from the theatre of the absurd is the next offering from the CBC Drama Department.

"The Tiger," by Murray Schisgal and "The Zoo Story," by Edward Albee will be presented this evening, with performances on Saturday and Sunday, as well. Curtain time for the two plays is at 8:15. Tickets are free to CBC students upon presentation of their ASB cards.

Fred C. Dixon, director, reports that these plays are considered to be adult entertainment and are not recommended for children. Both plays present modern day problems and face them squarely.

"The Tiger" tells the story of an abduction. As the play opens, Ben, (Jerry Wang) carries the screaming Gloria (Nelsina Wilfert) into his apartment.

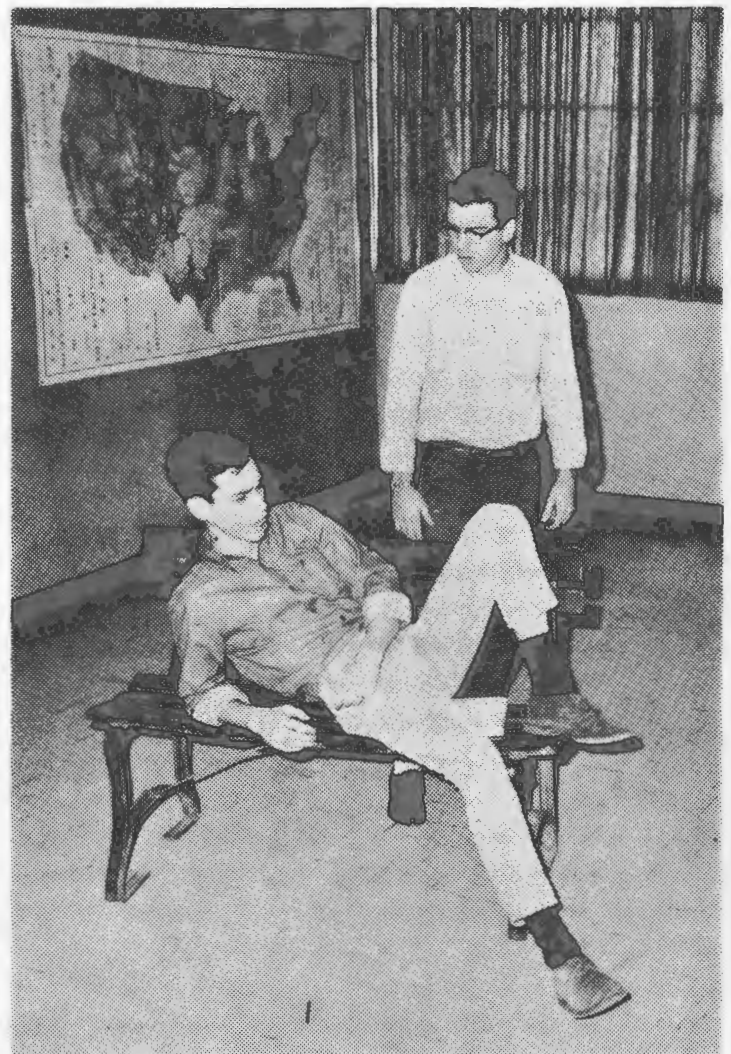

He has found her in a subway station and, like the tiger stalking its prey, he captures and abducts her.

From this ridiculous situation, the playwright builds the play into a biting satire on modern man and his problems.

"The Zoo Story" tells of a strange meeting between two men. Peter, (Greg Reed,) sits reading in the park. He is approached by an odd young man, Jerry, (J. Dale Long)

Jerry keeps Peter in the park, while he tells him stories that hypnotize him with their strangeness. The men fight over a park bench and the play ends in violence, with the course of both men's lives unalterably changed by this meeting.

ANOTHER TENSE MOMENT: J. Dale Long is still expounding upon the lack of communication between human beings.

Just Raising a Question

How do we measure an individual's achievements at CBC?

The national Honor Society standard is widely used. It accepts students on the basis of good scholarship, leadership, service and character. In fact, the criteria for the student of the month awards were drawn along the same lines.

The qualities of scholarship, leadership and service do not require much explanation. When a student is considered to have good scholarship, it means that he has maintained an above average grade point.

A student who participates in campus organizations in an official capacity, or assumes responsibility among his peers is considered a leader. A member or officer of a campus service club, such as Circle K; a student who represents CBC off campus and at conferences, or one who contributes in some way to the student body or the school itself, fulfills the criteria for service. The interpretation of the character requirement is not so self-evident.

IS AN individual with good character one who goes to church every Sunday, never does anything wrong and would never hurt a fly? What is our character yard stick? Do we measure character by whether one drinks, smokes or swears?

Let's take a former CBC student, Paul Garbe, who is closer to a campus hero than any other student who has recently attended CBC. Garbe was considered to have all these qualities. He died in an automobile accident last year.

Immediately after Garbe's death, a memorial scholarship fund was set up for him. The ASB Council also held a memorial service in his honor. Garbe was a credit to CBC. His death was accidental. But does it matter how Garbe died? His contributions still live and his example has perpetuated itself among those who knew him; and, perhaps, even those who never knew him.

THE IMPORTANT consideration is what an individual does in life and what he contributes to mankind or to his fellow students—not the manner of his death.

British Comedy Film to Be Shown Here Thurs.

Next week's movie in the CBC film series is the British comedy, "The Mouse that Roared." The movie will be shown in I-2 on February 11 at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m.

"The Mouse that Roared" is a political satire starring Peter Sellers and Margaret Rutherford. In the movie, Sellers plays several different roles.

The movie is about a postage-stamp-sized European country that declares war on the United States. The United States ignores them and they invade the United States with an army of a few men. The movie is in technicolor, and is free to CBC students and faculty.

Vox Populi, Vox Dei...

Dear Editor,

I believe something should be mentioned about our school spirit during the basketball games this year before CBC's game with Yakima Valley Junior College tonight.

I have witnessed the home games through my appearance with the band. The band is asked to play at all home games to attempt to help the only spirit we have—the cheer leaders.

Granted, there are a few loyal students who make it to some of the games and yell when the team is pushing for 100 points, or leading by only ten points.

EVEN though the team has been pressed for victory only one or two times, this does not mean we are unbeatable. It has been proven twice already this year!

Yakima is bringing down its school spirit Friday. With support from the student body and determination to beat the mighty Hawks, this game could turn out to be our toughest opponent. The students at CBC can show the spirit and the faith we have in our championship team only if we yell together.

Maybe it would help if the cheer leaders would work on cheers that were simple yet effective. It doesn't hurt to say something simple if it does the job—and creating school spirit is a full time job around here.

A Hawk fan,
Ron Shade.

Dear Editor:

I feel we students owe a lot to our library staff for their fine assistance. A term paper for English 102 has kept me busy this quarter, but research has been considerably easier thanks to their fine and patient guidance.

Hawks Down Wildcats

After downing the Central Washington Wildcats 23-12 last weekend, the CBC wrestlers hope to add two more wins to their record today and tomorrow. The grapplers take on Clark College this afternoon at 2 p.m. and the Whitman Missionaries tomorrow at 1 p.m. Both matches will be in the CBC gym.

"Both teams are from strong wrestling schools," said head coach John Howard.

"The outstanding match with Central was between Bill Harr (CBC) and Dallas DeLay. Harr won 3-2. When Harr and DeLay were in high school, DeLay beat Harr in the state finals. Harr reversed the decision Friday night, said Howard.

"THEIR heavyweight (Bob Davidson) did a good job. Davidson wrestled for CBC previously. He was a state jr. college champ," Howard said.

"Kinion came through in good shape by pinning his man. Surplus and Norton lost real close ones by riding time, said Howard.

"We're starting to gain top team strength now. We're getting over our injuries. We hope to reach top strength by the end of the month," Howard said.

Yakima Packs Portable Fans, Will Play Hawks

Friday night, Pasco will be besieged by 80 loyal Yakima rooters as the Yakima Valley JC Indians meet the CBC Hawks at the Pasco High School gymnasium at 8 p.m. From the looks of things the Indians, with a 3-3 record, are going to need all the help they can get to beat the first place Hawks. Last week, the CBC squad did away with Spokane

Community College and are looking as good as ever in preparation for tonight.

Besides their cheering section and cheerleaders, Yakima will bring a drill team of 20 girls who will perform at halftime. The Talons have a reserved section directly behind the Yakima team bench for their rooting section.

20 LITTLE INDIANS: Stepping out proudly is the Yakima Valley College Drill Team who will be appearing here tonight at halftime when the first-place Hawks meet the Indians. YVC is the only community college in the state to have a drill team. Costumes for the twenty girls were made by women of the Yakima Indian tribe and are red with a white leather trim. Miss Sue Anson, physical education instructor and coordinator of student activities, is advisor to the team.

Air Force Changes ROTC

Significant changes in the traditional Air Force ROTC program now make it possible for junior college students to enter the advanced program and obtain commissions in the United States Air Force, even though they have not taken the basic AFROTC course.

These changes were brought about through recent passage of ROTC legislation.

Junior college students who plan to attend a four-year college or university which offers AFROTC, can substitute a six-week Field Training Course for the two years of basic AFROTC normally taken in the freshman and sophomore years by those students enrolled at colleges offering AFROTC.

The new six-week Field Training Course will be conducted at an Air Force Base and is designed to compress the training normally given during the basic course, so that students entering the two-year program will do so on a par with those four-year students who have completed the normal AFROTC basic program.

ALL MALE STUDENTS who have two years or more of academic work remaining until award of their degree, either baccalaureate or the graduate level, are eligible to apply.

As a cadet in the two-year program, students will attend class three hours per week, and receive a monthly retainer pay of $40, plus necessary textbooks and uniforms.

Students who are interested in the new two-year program and who plan to transfer to four-year institutions anytime before September 1965, are urged to write or visit the Professor of Aerospace Studies, Washington State University, Pullman, Washington, before February 15, 1965.
